BEECHER-TILTON.

Mr. F. B. Carpenter tells his Story.

NEW YORK, July 30.—The Brooklyn Argus to-day contains Carpenter's story of the difficulty between Beecher and Tilton. Oliver Johnson states before the Committee that Tilton never charged Beecher with criminality in his hearing. Mr. Carpenter states that his first absolute conviction of adultery between Mrs. Tilton and Beecher was from Oliver Johnson and [illegible]. Dr. Storrs said: First, Mr. Beecher [illegible] criminal relations. Second, [illegible] Third, Mr. Beecher [illegible] paper from Tilton denying that such relations had ever existed. Fourth, that Mr. Moulton got that paper from Beecher. Mr. Tilton said to Dr. Storrs, what if these stories can't be denied? Dr. Storrs replied: If these points can't be denied I have no advice to give. Advice would be worse than silence. Tilton said to the Doctor that he had not told and could not tell him the whole truth.

General Tracy said to-day that the Committee expected to end the whole thing this week.

Mr. Beecher requests Mr. Frank Moulton to go before the Committee.

The Brooklyn Eagle says it is informed and is authorized to announce that Henry Ward Beecher has written a letter to Frank Moulton in which he earnestly asks and desires Moulton to go before the Committee and exhibit all documents he has and tell all he knows with reference to matters in controversy between Tilton and Beecher. This letter is declared to be long, explicit, earnest, unmistakable and to the effect that Mr. Beecher has no wish and Moulton no alternative but for the latter to go before the Committee and fully and frankly say all he can say forthwith. This earnest request from Mr. Beecher coming with a request from the Committee itself will reach or has reached Moulton at Narragansett Pier.

The Brooklyn Eagle says a witness before the Beecher Committee last evening was a female, and that her testimony among other matters is intended to show the untruthfulness and inconsistent [illegible] character and career of Tilton that it covered a series of years.

NEW YORK, July 30.—The Beecher Investigation Committee held an extra session yesterday to hasten the conclusion of the case. Beecher's statement is not yet filed. He allows no one to approach him on the subject of the scandal.

Tilton has made three ineffectual efforts to see his wife. She refused admittance each time. The friends of Beecher seem to fear that Tilton still preserves power over his wife.

The Woodhull Boasts.

Mrs. Woodhull declares that she can force Beecher to publicly avow the doctrine of free love which he has practiced for years, and that he will astonish and convince the world of the new doctrine by the depth of his experience and the force of his arguments.

The run of salmon in the Fraser is great and the catchers and canners are as busy as bees. We are told that there is a scarcity of lead used largely in sinking nets and soldering cans.

The heavy rains at Cariboo which have fallen during the past five or six weeks almost without intermission, have proved a great drawback to creek mining, and will probably delay the pumping out of the claims on Lightning creek, as it still continues to pour down there.

At Comox the farmers are all busy making hay and some have got through. The weather is very fine now although there has been much rain during the season. A new settler was fined $5 and costs ($10) for allowing his bull to get loose. The Old House Indian Camp, was burned down last week. No lives lost.

At the annual examination of the pupils held at St. Ann's Convent, Victoria, on the 21st inst., Miss Addie Smithers (daughter of J. M. Smithers, Esq., Seattle) was awarded the "medal of honor" for good conduct and politeness, and the first prize in geography, ancient history, modern history, composition, vocal music, drawing, fancy work, rhetoric, and the third in instrumental music.

Mrs. Ritchie of Canoe Creek, 50 miles from Clinton, died on the 16th inst. of heart disease. She was seemingly in her usual good health when left by her husband about 6 P. M., but on returning a short time afterwards for his pipe he discovered her lying a few feet from the back door quite dead. She was the only white woman living in the vicinity and was esteemed by all who knew her.

THE EUREKA CLOUD BURST.

EUREKA (Nev.) July 23.—When the waterspout first burst, sending its waters through the town in large streams without, however, doing any very considerable damage, the excitement of the people soon calmed down somewhat, though their fears were not wholly allayed. The water had entered the eastern and lowest part of the town with astounding rapidity, entirely flooding it. No sooner had the inhabitants supposed that the flood had attained its greatest height and that it would soon subside than a perfect ocean came roaring down the canyon from two directions, hurling destruction right and left and even tearing up the earth along its path.

A PERFECT DELUGE.

So sudden and unexpected was this last avalanche of water hurled upon the devoted people that they were taken wholly unawares and unprepared to resist its deadly fury. Those who escaped the deluge owing to their being in the more elevated portion of the town [illegible] went to the assistance of the sufferers, but as the seething and foaming waters swept furiously through the town any attempt at [illegible] was attended with the greatest peril. Had the flood occurred in the night time hundreds of lives must have been lost. As it is there is wide spread desolation and bitter [illegible]. Lest the occurrence be repeated—the weather still threatening—a careful watch will be kept through the night.

STOCKTON, July 30.—About 10 o'clock this morning, between Jenny Lind and North America stations, the San Andreas stage was stopped by two masked highwaymen armed with rifles. The spokesman demanded Wells, Fargo's treasure box. The driver informed the robbers that Sisson & Co. did not carry Wells, Fargo's express on that route. After a short parley the driver was instructed to pass along. The passengers, among whom were two ladies, in the coach were not molested. Russell's stage which passed the same point half an hour later with Wells, Fargo's matter was not molested.

At the County Hospital yesterday a young man recently bit on the hand by a tarantula and brought to the hospital for medical attention had his arm amputated a little below the elbow. Amputation was necessary to save his life.

SAN DIEGO, July 30.—The Indian Sordo was brought in last evening by Manuel Largo, general of the Cahuilla Indians, and safely lodged in jail. Largo was accompanied by four of his under chiefs. He was examined before Justice Wilson to-day and committed to appear before the grand jury.

CALISTOGA, July 30.—Judge J. S. Stark, an old resident of Napa valley, died suddenly at his ranch near this place yesterday while at work. He fell insensible to the ground and expired in a few minutes. Heart disease is supposed to be the cause of his death.

Considerable excitement prevails here owing to the discovery within a few days of several well defined auriferous quartz veins presumed to be the continuation of the Calistoga silver mine. The success of this company has caused a large influx of miners and already hundreds of locations have been made, principally south and west of St. Helena Mountain and near the Geyser road. It was discovered three miles from town at the mouth of the canyon lying under a door and was in a very decomposed state, having lain there nearly five days. It is believed all those who lost their lives have been recovered. None are known to be missing, but careful parties are still examining every place where a body could possibly lodge.

ARIZONA.

SAN DIEGO, July 30.—A Union special from Prescott of the 29th says that a party of prospectors who were out near the Mineral Park, supposing all the Indians were on the reservations, suddenly came upon a band of Hualapai Indians who made hostile demonstrations and compelled the prospectors to return.

BY STATE TELEGRAPH.

Safe Robbery at Salem.

SALEM, July 30.—The safe of Wells, Fargo & Co. in this city was opened last night and robbed of everything of value it contained, amounting to about three thousand dollars. The burglars entered the building through the cellar door, having first broke into the agent's house and secured his pants containing the safe keys, and the combination was not on, an easy entrance was effected. At daylight a policeman employed for the purpose was in the office to turn off the gas which is left burning all night, and at that time everything was all right as usual. No clue as yet to the robbers.

A Little Longer.

Judge Bonham has granted the motion for a stay of proceedings in the case of State of Oregon vs. Thomas Gerrand, and the case will go up to the Supreme Court.

DELONG AND STEWART.—It is said that the great Bill Stewart of Honest Miners' Camp is anxious again to [illegible] to Nevada by serving another Senatorial term. Greatly as Mr. Stewart is to be admired we cannot be forgetful of the cruel remark made by Charley DeLong when Stewart was elected. It was a melancholy fact, said Charley, that when you plaster a bullwhacker over with twenty dollar pieces you produce a statesman. At that time Charley had a sneaking idea that he would like to be a statesman, and was perfectly willing to subject himself to the same style of gilded fresco. We fear, however, that he lacked the true foundation. Charley never was very much of a bullwhacker. It is said, however, that he was quite an adept at mixing cocktails and collecting tolls from bullwhackers on a certain Yuba river bridge.—S. F. Chronicle.

The finances of Astoria are in a healthy condition.

THE TILTON-BEECHER CASE.

Tilton's Testimony before the Investigating Committee.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Evening.—The [illegible] matter of Plymouth Church [illegible] investigation into the [illegible] session to-night.

An endeavor to interview Mr. Beecher this morning resulted in obtaining from him only the declaration that Tilton's charges were absolutely false, and that he would in good time make that apparent. He added that he was at least entitled to the right accorded to every criminal—the right of being heard before being condemned.

Mr. Tracy says Mr. Beecher's fault was stupidity—that in his concealment [illegible].

General Butler says he has no connection with the case and is not counsel for Mr. Tilton or Mr. Moulton, but he cannot speak for the future. Of Mr. Tilton's statement the general added, "I think it a most unfortunate thing that it should have been ever made public. I advised very strongly against its being given to the world. It is a miserable piece of business."

Oliver Johnson to-day stated to a reporter that Tilton, in 1870, in conversation with him, charged Beecher with making improper advances to Mrs. Tilton, which she resisted. Tilton never accused Beecher to him of adultery. Johnson subsequently spoke of the charges to Mr. Beecher himself and he denied them. He entered into no explanations, nor did Mr. Johnson press him for any.

MRS. TILTON CONFIDENT OF A FAVORABLE RESULT OF THE INVESTIGATION.

Mrs. Tilton says she wrote her statement denying the allegations of her husband, that she closeted herself alone at ten o'clock at night and spent until three o'clock the next morning in preparing the document. That she afterward read it to Mr. Ovington, and the only alteration not made by herself were some grammatical changes and alterations of punctuation. Being asked if she intended to occupy her old home in Livingstone street, Mrs. Tilton replied that as so many melancholy associations are connected with the place she deprecates the effect they might produce on her mind and heart. She expressed entire confidence in a favorable result of the present investigation.

WHAT MRS. WOODHULL SAYS.

An interviewer yesterday put the following interrogatory to Victoria Woodhull:

Did Mrs. Tilton confess to you that she had been faithless to her marriage vows?

"I won't answer," exclaimed Mrs. Woodhull impulsively. Then after a moment's hesitation added: "When I first published the statement that I knew of two eminent persons who were living in concubinage and preaching from their pulpits I was not acquainted with Theodore Tilton. I had never met him. I supposed him to be a clergyman. The day after the announcement he called upon me, showed me the extract and asked me if it referred to him. I told him it did. In two or three days time he invited me to his house and introduced me to his wife. What would he have done that for if not to say, 'Elizabeth, here is one that knows all'?"

Then you did not get your first information from Mr. Tilton?

"No. Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Isabella Hooker told me. The matter had been talked over for months between these ladies before I gave it to the public."

CROSS EXAMINATION OF MR. TILTON BEFORE THE INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE.

NEW YORK, July 29.—The Tribune furnishes the particulars of the cross examination of Mr. Tilton before the Beecher Investigating Committee. It is prefaced by the following letter from H. W. Sage:

Mr. Tilton's direct testimony having been published without the knowledge or consent of the Committee of Investigation, and fragmentary contradictory reports of his testimony under cross examination having been published by means unknown to the Committee and without its consent, whereby it is said Mr. Tilton feels that injustice has been done to him, it is believed that in fairness to all parties the whole of Mr. Tilton's testimony should be made public at once.

H. W. SAGE, Chairman.

The testimony makes ten columns in the Tribune. Following are the principal points of interest:

In answer to questions by General Tracy, Tilton said he could not give the date of the transaction which he said he witnessed at Mr. Beecher's house at the time Beecher and Mrs. Tilton were examining engravings. His wife continued to attend Plymouth Church after that transaction, but not regularly. About the time that he ceased to be editor of the Independent he made distinct allegations to Bowen against Beecher of the offence he had committed against him, and a letter was agreed upon between him and Bowen demanding that Beecher should quit the Plymouth Church pulpit.

The examination proceeded as follows:

Question—And was that agreement the result of your statement of offences by Mr. Beecher which he and you knew of?

Answer—On the part of Bowen, yes.

Q.—On your part?

A.—Yes—I made one statement and he made many.

Q.—Will you state what offence you stated against Beecher to Bowen on that occasion?

A.—Mr. Johnson having introduced the subject, Mr. Bowen said to me, "Mr. Tilton, you do not say as much of Plymouth Church as a Brooklyn paper should. You do not go there. Why do you not go?"

Q.—I asked you what offence you stated against Mr. Beecher to Mr. Bowen.

A.—I must answer your question in my own way. I came here to tell the whole truth and not fragments of the truth. Bowen wanted me to speak more in my paper of Plymouth Church. Mr. Johnson said, "Perhaps Mr. Tilton has reasons for not going to Plymouth Church," and thereupon Mr. Bowen was curious to know the reasons. I, in solitary phrase, said there was a personal domestic reason why I could not go there consistent with self-respect; that Beecher had been unhandsome in his approaches to my wife. That is the sum and substance of all I have ever said on this subject to the very few people to whom I have spoken of it.

Being asked when he first learned that Mr. and Mrs. Beecher had in any way communicated the facts to Bowen who affiliated him in the matter of his [illegible] dismissal, witness said: "I learned that from Beecher himself on the day after the apology was written, on the 1st, possibly the 2d of January. It was in Moulton's room. Beecher came in. It was an unexpected meeting. Beecher burst out in expressions of sorrow and said he hoped the communication he had sent me by Moulton was satisfactory. He then and there told Moulton that he had done wrong, though not so much as some others had—referring to his wife, who had made statements to Bowen which ought to be unmade—and volunteered to write a letter to Bowen concerning the facts he had misstated. Mrs. Tilton had told me of the visit Mrs. Beecher made her and the testimony they wanted to get. Mrs. Tilton spoke a number of times of the enmity which Mrs. Beecher had for some stronger reason connected with Mrs. Morse (Mrs. Tilton's mother). There was a conspiracy between Mrs. Morse and Mrs. Beecher. The truth is, Mrs. Tilton's confession was made also to her mother, who naturally wanted to protect her daughter, and she made a kind of alliance with Mr. Beecher, and Mrs. Beecher took part in it. There was a desire on their part to protect Elizabeth. Mrs. Tilton thought my retirement from the papers was due in some way to Mr. Beecher, and as I was very indignant against Bowen, that unless there was some reconciliation between Beecher and her husband her secret would be exposed. She begged me to have an interview with Beecher, and wrote a note to that effect. The purpose of that interview was that Mrs. Tilton felt that Beecher and myself were in danger of collision, and for her sake and at her request it took place. My dismissal from the Union was two days after that interview. The interview had nothing to do with it."

Being asked why the difficulty with Bowen would involve the exposure of his family secret which he obtained from Mrs. Tilton six months before, witness said: "It was not through fear of exposing it. Mrs. Morse and Mrs. Beecher were sometimes in collusion, and Mrs. Tilton always made me believe that Mr. Beecher knew the secret until in December she told me. I took it for granted all summer long that she told him what she told me and that she had told her mother, and I supposed Mrs. Beecher was co-operating with Mrs. Morse."

Q.—Did you not complain of Mr. Beecher for not aiding you to remain on the Independent?

A.—No, sir. I would have scorned it.

Tilton continued: He never told Samuel Wilkinson that Beecher had not befriended him in that matter, or was unjust to him, and saying he ought to be turned out. In further testimony witness said he accepted the apology Beecher made and forgave the offense with as much charity as he thought it possible for a Christian man to assume. His relations thereafter with Beecher were not friendly, but not hostile; they were relations which Moulton had forced with an iron hand. Witness had taken pains to have it appear in all quarters that Beecher and himself were not in hostility. He suppressed his self-respect many times in doing it. Never stated the offense of Beecher to Dr. Storrs. Showed Dr. Storrs a letter which Elizabeth and himself wrote and which he still preserved. It did not charge Beecher with any offense at all.

To the question how was the offense stated, Tilton said it began in this way: "That on a certain day in the summer of 1870 she had informed her husband that Mr. Beecher had asked her to be a wife to him, together with all that this implies. She was very solicitous to make it appear that she did not accept his proposition, and I, partly in reading, those who saw it naturally inferred she did not. It was a perfectly correct statement." Witness read the statement to Beecher, who objected to it, and witness made no further use of it. He, however, prepared a document on his relations to Bowen, in which Elizabeth's letter was stated, as well as the letter of apology, which he put in, not wishing to make the offense more than it was. [illegible] having the worst known. This was also read to Dr. Storrs, to whom witness went in great trouble, wanting counsel.

Q.—And so [illegible] correct counsel you [illegible] the case?

A.—It was a statement necessary to be made after Mrs. Woodhull's statement. I was out of town, and the thing had filled the country, and Beecher had taken no notice of it. I went to Dr. Storrs for counsel. He asked me about the story, and I said, "Don't ask me for that." He said, "Give me some facts by which I can judge; give me that which can be proved." So I gave him an account of my affairs very largely about Mrs. Woodhull and the origin of that document. I was seeking for something that would put before the public a plausible answer to Woodhull's story, and I conceived that by a chain of facts we might perhaps explain it away. I read it to Mr. Beecher and he burst into a long sigh. I saw that he would not or could not stand upon it, and Elizabeth burned or tore it to pieces.

Q.—Why did you abandon the document?

A.—Because there was no success in it.

Q.—Why? Was it not because he did not accept it?

A.—Because he did not accept or reject it. He wanted no statement to be made, and so the thing was buried.

Q.—Have you not frequently asserted the purity of your wife?

A.—No. I have always had a strange technical use of words. I have taken pains to say that she was a devoted Christian woman. That necessarily carried the other. It was like the statement that I carried to Dr. Storrs. I do not think he caught the idea of that statement as he took it. I do not think it covered the whole. I have said Elizabeth was a tender, delicate, kind Christian woman, which I think she is.

Q.—Have you not stated that she was pure?

A.—No.

Q.—Have you not stated that she was as pure as an angel?

A.—I have said to Mr. Halliday, "I have sought to give Elizabeth a good character. I have always wanted to do so. I think she deserves a good character. I think she is better than most of us, better than I am. I don't believe in point of actual moral goodness, barring some drawbacks, there is in this company a whiter woman than Elizabeth Tilton."

Q.—Did you state that in substance to one or more gentlemen with whom you were lunching?

A.—In substance yes, and I state it now, but I did not use the phrase. She has never violated her chastity.

Q.—Did you not say that she was pure?

A.—No.

Q.—Did you use expressions which you intended to be understood as meaning the purity of woman?

A.—I did exactly. There are many ways in which you can produce such impressions, and I have written this document to produce the same impression.

Tilton was next examined in relation to Wilkerson's statement and explicitly contradicted several points therein, stating that the conversation between himself and Wilkerson was about Bowen, whose charges against Beecher it was desired should be withdrawn. Witness expressed a gladness to have this done, for he thought every charge against Beecher endangered his wife, but when the paper was brought to him to sign he found it was a compliment to Beecher, rose colored, in which witness was to look up to Beecher with filial respect. He said, "I won't sign that to the end of the world," and cut out a few lines and would not use them. If Wilkerson communicates the impression that witness ever wanted money from Beecher it is false. Beecher has communicated through Moulton request that witness should be assisted by him, but he would not take a penny of Beecher's money if he suffered from hunger and thirst, and that if directly or indirectly Moulton communicated to him any of Beecher's money it would break their friendship. Witness' complaint to Wilkinson was that Beecher had been unjust, not that he had not helped him. Witness' relations and feelings toward Beecher since January 1st, 1871, when he made the apology, down to the time when the Church began to put out its right hand and take witness by the throat, were friendly. They were friendly in the sense that we were not in collision with each other, but were not those of friendship. Witness had taken Beecher's apology and given his word that he would not have him exposed.

Q.—Is it your sentiment that that is an offense for which one man can apologize to another?

A.—I know there is a code of honor among gentlemen that a man cannot condone such offense, but I cannot see what offense a man cannot forgive where an apology is made by the person committing it to the person against whom it is committed. If a man believes in the Christian religion he ought to sometimes forgive.

Q.—Is that your handwriting—[showing a slip of paper on which was written, "H. W. B.—Grace, mercy and peace. Sunday morning. T. T."]

A.—I remember that one morning Mr. Beecher met me on the street and told me how much pleasure it gave him. I have sent kinder things than that to him.

Q.—Did you feel as you spoke?

A.—I did. Mr. Moulton said two or three times, "Mr. Beecher is in great depression. Can't you do something to cheer him?" One morning I walked to church with him. In many circumstances I manifested feelings of kindness toward him. It would be a lie to say that I felt a warm friendship for Mr. Beecher, and that I felt as kindly to him as if the offense had not been committed. If I had been a man morally great I would have battled it out and trodden it under foot. I was competent to forgive in a large degree. I forgave him in my best moods, but at other times I did not. I am not a very large man.

In reply to an inquiry whether Mrs. Woodhull came frequently to his house, and whether his wife did not protest against her presence there, witness said Mrs. Woodhull was three times at his house, once to meet Mr. Beecher. Mr. Moulton made that interview. It must have been in 1871 or 1872. Mrs. Woodhull and her husband came. Witness and his wife expressed indignation. Witness told her that Mrs. Woodhull was too dangerous a woman and too much of the welfare of the family depended on her. He told his wife the way to get along with her and prevent this coming out was to keep friendly with her. It was a fatal policy, but then it seemed as the only thing that could be done. The mistake was in not being friendly with Blood instead of Mrs. Woodhull; that was the blunder. His wife always felt that the policy was a mistaken one of trying to do anything with Mrs. Woodhull. She objected violently to his written sketch. Mrs. Woodhull read a part to her. Mrs. Woodhull's husband wrote the biography and wanted witness to rewrite it, because his style was more vivid. Witness' wife said she thought he would rue the day. She was far wiser than he was.

Q.—When you said that in December 1870 differences arose between Theodore Tilton and Henry C. Bowen which were augmented by Rev. H. W. Beecher and Mrs. Beecher, in consequence whereof and at the wish of Mrs. E. R. Tilton expressed in writing in a paper put in the hands of Mr. F. D. Moulton, why do you say that it was in consequence of that difficulty being augmented by Mr. and Mrs. Beecher that this letter was written or this writing was made?

A.—Elizabeth saw that Mr. Bowen and I were in collision. She was afraid the collision would extend to Mr. Beecher and me and she wished me if possible to make my peace with him. That peace could be brought about only by his knowing what I knew of his relations with Mrs. Tilton; therefore she wrote a womanly kindly letter to him. I do not remember the phraseology. I remember only one phrase that was peculiarly hers. She said she loved her husband with her maiden flame. Moulton will probably recall the whole phraseology.

Q.—What was the substance of the letter?

A.—I do not recall the letter. It was returned to her. Whether she has it or not I do not know. The object of the letter was to make peace. She felt that if Mr. Beecher and I could be reconciled she herself and I would be more reconciled. There was a sort of mountain of clouds overcoming us.

Q.—Who had reported to her the fact that your difficulty was being augmented by Mr. and Mrs. Beecher?

A.—I do not know. She reported it to me. It was through her that I learned Mrs. Beecher was interfering with my affairs. It was through Mrs. Tilton that I learned of Mrs. Beecher's antagonism to me. I do not think Mr. Beecher was so largely involved as his wife was.

Q.—Had you known of Mr. Beecher's interference in your affairs prior to that?

A.—I cannot say with my affairs, not with my business affairs or with my domestic affairs. I recollect Elizabeth went sometimes to the Health Lift and Mrs. Beecher came there and saw her one day.

Q.—What date was that?

A.—I do not know. Mrs. Beecher, through Mrs. Morse, got the idea that I was Mr. Beecher's enemy; therefore Mrs. Beecher was very violently my enemy. Mrs. Beecher being my enemy, and feeling that I was bent on battle against her husband, sought to make an alliance with Elizabeth, and, as I understood, wanted Elizabeth to go away from me and part company, and she said she would not do it. Trouble having hinged on the fact that Elizabeth had made to me and Mrs. Morse a confession but had not told Mr. Beecher that she had done so, I said there was only one way out of the difficulty and that was that Mr. Beecher must know it.

Witness was asked if he had his wife's letters with him. He said no; he was perfectly willing to carry them before any judge or in presence of some outside parties, but would refuse to hand them to the Committee alone. They were six gentlemen determined if possible not to find facts but to vindicate Mr. Beecher, and if he should hand over Mr. Beecher's apology perhaps they would not return it to him, though he did not mean to make that implication; he did not mean to give them the chance. The Committee and counsel protested against the implication.

To a question as to his wife's devotion and purity of life witness said she was pure unless a technical meaning was applied to the word purity. She was made a victim; she was not to blame. She sought consolation from her pastor, and he took advantage of her orthodox vows to make them a net and mesh in which he ensnared her, and for which witness held him in contempt which no English words could describe.

Q.—Was not she (Mrs. Tilton) distressed at any suggestion of impropriety?

A.—She was particularly so, and she is more so now than ever, because in her early days such thought was never in her mind, but when it had passed through her experience it came out with this contrition. That is the truth. She never ought to have been taken away from her home. You gentlemen did it. You did it, Mr. Tracy; thou art the man.

Q.—When did you first bring your wife's attention to the fact that you found there was something wrong in Beecher's caress?

A.—It must have been during the early years when we lived in our present house, about 1863. Never spoke of it afterwards, because Elizabeth blotted out the idea of wrong at the time. I was very young and utterly unsuspicious. When I spoke to her about it she was a little confused and denied it. Afterwards she said it was so, but that she said, "You must not do that." My reverence for Beecher prevented me from speaking to him about it or to any one else. Mr. Beecher and Mrs. Tilton were sitting on the floor looking at some pictures. Don't remember whether I was sitting with them or not; it was so long ago. The improper caress I saw with my own eyes. Beecher did not look at me; he did not know I noticed it. She may have been sitting on a stool, he on the floor.

Q.—Were you where he could see you?

A.—He was looking at the pictures.

Q.—If he had looked up, would he have seen you?

A.—Yes—

* * * * *

Q.—You were in doubt whether the gesture was intentional or accidental?

A.—I was merely suspicious.

The Committee then proceeded to examine Tilton about the bed room scene. He did not know the year; it was a good while ago, and while they were living on Livingstone street. He remembered the room, identified it by a picture. It was the left hand room on the second story. I knocked at the door and Elizabeth came. I was surprised as the door was locked, and she was surprised at finding me. Beecher was sitting in a red plush rocking chair with his vest unbuttoned. His face colored like the rose when I saw him.

Q.—Her explanation was satisfactory to you on that occasion?

A.—Entirely so. I should have thought nothing of it had I not wondered at the door being locked. The room was a bed room, connected with the sitting room by sliding doors. Both rooms opened into the hall.

Q.—May they not have gone into the sitting room from the hall and thence into the bed room?

A.—I will give them the benefit of a doubt.

Q.—What was the explanation given which you found satisfactory?

A.—Annoyance of the children. My wife said ours and the neighbors' children were making a noise; she wanted a quiet talk with Mr. Beecher and so locked herself in.

Q.—That satisfied you?

A.—Yes, it was entirely satisfactory.

Q.—Were the sliding doors open?

A.—They were shut.

Q.—Was the hall door opened immediately?

A.—Yes.

In reply to further questions, Tilton said he never regarded the circumstance as evidence of wrong. Her explanation had blotted it out from his remembrance, but he had since mentioned it because the circumstances were such that made him feel that her explanation of both scenes was untrue. At first he thought there was not any wrong until in the light of subsequent events. He would not say there was anything wrong in it now. Elizabeth always denied stoutly any wrong.

Q.—You say that for a year after what you state as Mrs. Tilton's confession she insisted to you that she had not violated her marriage vow?

A.—Yes. Elizabeth was in a sort of vaporous like cloud; she was between light and darkness; she could not see that it was wrong. She maintained to her mother in my presence that she couldn't bear to do wrong. A sense of having done wrong is enough to crush her. She naturally seeks for her own peace and a conscientious verdict. She never would have had these relations if she had supposed at the time that they were wrong. Elizabeth never does anything that at the time seems wrong. For such a large moral nature there is a lack of balance and equipoise; she has not the will that guides and restrains, but Elizabeth never does at any time that which does not have the stamp of her conscience at the time upon it.

Q.—Do you say that she did or did not insist that she had violated her marriage vows?

A.—She always was saying it never seemed to her wrong, and "Theodore, I do not now see that I have wronged you."

Q.—What do you understand her as meaning that "Love is praiseworthy, but the abuse of love is a sin"?

A.—I rather think she means carrying love to too great an extent.

Q.—Would not that include criminal relations?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Then you understand her as early as 1868 as saying that the abuse of the gift of love, by adultery, would be a sin?

A.—Yes.

Tilton continued: Mrs. Tilton was a lady of large reading, and Mr. Beecher carried to her the sheets of his Life of Christ and Norwood for criticism. She was one of the best of critics and her judgment was not warped by affection, and he (Tilton) was always certain that if Elizabeth liked what he wrote, it was not on his account, though she was always glad when he wrote a good thing. It was honest criticism. If he had been a minister none of this trouble would have come. She was always sorry he was not a minister, "which is the only virtue he possessed." "Thank God," said Tilton, "I don't belong to the priesthood of the church. I am a man of religious sympathies who thoroughly hates and despises religious creeds. I don't believe in one of the 39 articles, nor in either of the catechisms, nor in the Divinity of Christ, in the sense in which it is held."

Witness continued: My wife grieved over this with tears, and found what was wanting in him in Beecher, who took advantage of it, and ought to spend the rest of his life in penitence and anguish. She regarded Beecher almost as Jesus Christ himself. Tilton did not think thoughts of passion and criminality were in her breast; they were altogether in Beecher's. She thought only of love and reverence.

Q.—Such a character would not excite the thought of jealousy as to her?

A.—Not the slightest. I never had the slightest feeling of jealousy in regard to Elizabeth. There was a time when I felt that Beecher was using his influence greatly upon her.

Q.—To control her in her domestic relations with you?

A.—No, but to win her. He was always trying to get her to say that she loved him better than me.

Q.—She never would say it?

A.—I don't think she ever did. She loved his religious views; she loved him as an evangelical minister, but I don't think, on the whole, he was as much to her as I was.

OREGON.

Nearly every county in Oregon claims undeveloped coal mines.

The sixth brick kiln of the season at the Penitentiary is nearly completed.

The telegraph office at Salem has sent and received 3,883 dispatches in six months.

The residence of Drury Stanton, on the Santiam river, was burned on Saturday last.

A Salem establishment expects to turn out 200,000 grain bags before the 1st of November.

The Governor Grover is in the locks at Oregon City undergoing repairs preparatory to the fall trade.

Parties from Oregon City claim to have found excellent coal on the head waters of the Clackamas river.

A semi-weekly line of hacks for passengers and freight has been established between Independence and Salem.

The steamer E. N. Cooke was taken through the locks last Thursday and put on the waters of the Upper Willamette.

The Churchill farm in the Waldo Hills was sold the other day for $3,500, cash down. It sold last year for $1,000 less.

The Vestry of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, at Oregon City, are taking steps to erect a tower in front of the Church.

Mark Hoffman, sent to the Penitentiary from Washington county for one year for the embezzlement of school money, has been pardoned by the Governor.

Astoria has a cannon that has a history. It came to Oregon on the ill fated Silvia de Grasse, passed into the hands of Gen. John Adair, and will be sold for the benefit of the Episcopal parish.

Rev. H. H. Crosier has recalled for the present his temperance lecture at Monroe. Changes that were desired in other appointments demanded this change. He lectures on Saturday evening at Eugene City, and at Salem on Tuesday evening.

The Astorian editor is rantankerous this week because a Portland paper called him a sort of a Cosmopolitan Bohemian, or because two or three ships of good size passed up the river and did not stop on the Hog's Back for his delectation. And still the wharves of Portland are crowded with ships, the Astorian's whining having no more effect than if it bayed the moon.

The Catholics in Baker City and vicinity have at length determined that they will do their portion towards securing the services of the Sisters of the Most Holy Names to open a school in Baker City. With this object in view a festival was held last week in that city for the purpose of raising funds for that object. We also learn that a fair will be held early in October for the same purpose.

THE TERRITORIES.

Port Ludlow has a new hotel just completed.

The keel for a 1,500 ton ship will be laid at Port Discovery very soon.

The ship Rosalie sailed from Port Blakely, July 20th, with lumber for Australia.

The Steilacoom Express says a firm of that town has four ships laden with goods on the way from San Francisco. Big firm or little ships.

The sum of $150 has been received at Port Townsend to aid in the erection of a church at that place. It came from a Juvenile Missionary Society in Scranton, Penn.

The fort at Port Townsend is now occupied by about thirty soldiers, under command of Lieut. Houghey. Some dozen or more carpenters and masons are at work prosecuting repairs.

The dead Indian woman recently found at Olympia was not Susan, as at first supposed, and the other Siwashes were much frightened when they discovered Susan walking around live as anybody.

Rev. A. J. A. Archambault, pastor of Idaho City, was present and participated in the solemn Requiem Mass for the repose of the soul of Rt. Rev. Bishop O'Gorman, which took place in the Cathedral at St. Louis, Mo.

It seems that Rev. Mr. Hyland, of Port Townsend, has not accepted the very desirable place offered him by the Lord Bishop of Victoria, reports to the contrary notwithstanding. His present parishioners are pleased at his declension.

At Olympia, last Tuesday evening, as Miss Annie Farquhar was in the act of mounting a horse the animal became unruly and reared up, and in the attempt to save herself from the terrible situation of the horse falling on her she sprung from the stirrup to the ground, but with such violence as to break both bones of her leg just above the ankle.

A new Catholic Church is being erected on Lapwai creek, about eight miles from Fort Lapwai, and will be ready for dedication about the 1st of October. Rev. Father Cataldo has a large congregation in the vicinity, the majority of whom are Indians belonging to the Nez Perces tribe. Quite a number of settlers in the vicinity are Catholics also, and they are lending valuable assistance towards the completion of the new building.

The Seattle Intelligencer of July [illegible] says: [illegible] charged with stealing $1,500 coin from the saddle-bags of Mr. Jacob Schwartz, who was drowned in Lake Kitchelas about the 21st of June last, had a hearing yesterday before D. S. Smith, Esq., and was committed to jail to await the action of the Grand Jury, on the fourth Monday in August next, in default of $2,500 bail. W. H. White, Esq., appeared for the prosecution, D. P. Jenkins, Esq., for the defendant.

FRIDAY MORNING, JULY 31, 1874.

THE BULLETIN'S CONVERSION LASTS.

A few days after the late general election, we had occasion to call attention to a sudden improvement in the tone of the Portland Bulletin in its treatment of political questions. Prior to that time it had been one of the most consistent and persistent of old fashioned party organs. It had been ready to praise the doings of Republican leaders whether they deserved praise or censure, and equally ready to condemn whatever was done or proposed by a member of the opposition without the slightest reference to the merits of the case. In short, it was a party organ according to the notion of such an organ that prevailed two or three years ago, and, of course, was a representative of effete journalism. But suddenly, at the time stated above, a change came over the spirit of the paper, and it began to manifest such independence and individuality as surprised every one who had been accustomed to peruse its columns, and gratified all whose ideas had kept pace with the advancement in journalism. Since that time the Bulletin has repeatedly given its readers, editorially, exactly that kind of teaching for giving which it had been in the habit of denouncing the OREGONIAN as a deserter from Republicanism. Had not the readers of the OREGONIAN had an opportunity afforded them heretofore of reading some extracts from the Bulletin's new and better style of editorials, they would now be astonished to read the following extracts from the leading editorial article in the Bulletin of yesterday:

> Parties are intended to subserve and to be subservient to the highest, best and material interests of the State and nation. He who does not view party organizations in this light, and therefore affiliates with the particular party he prefers, is neither a sound patriot nor a worthy possessor of the right of suffrage. "Country first, party second," should be the rule and guide. Hence, in the investigation of the subject, the voter ought to divest himself of improper bias or irrelevant considerations, impartially weigh and justly determine. Having upon this rule made his selection of the party with which he proposes to affiliate and act, he ought then to faithfully adhere to it and zealously labor in its cause—to preserve it honest and pure as possible in its period of victory, and to maintain its integrity and excellence when reverses have overcome it and placed it in the minority. This duty cannot be fulfilled unless he is as certain to instance and as ready to condemn corruption within the ranks as he is to observe and denounce it in the ranks of the opposition. No party, however temporarily popular and mighty, can tolerate or engage in corruption and maintain its popularity and sway.
>
> Party organs are bound by the same rules which govern individuals in the organizations. They have no right to obtrude private grievances to trammel, harm or disaffect it. Perfection belongs not to anything human, and the small wrongs and unimportant irregularities which appertain to political parties in common with every association of men are not suitable or proper subjects for the criticism or censure of a party organ. While it should be ready to condemn a flagrant violation of party duty, it ought to be slow to the task and sure of its proof. But it ought not, in any event, to so fail of its true duty as to seek to cover up, to unreasoningly condone, or to unscrupulously vindicate or defend a great wrong, no matter by whom committed, whether by the most exalted in office, or by any particular council or convention of the party.
>
> The party organ which is so blinded by prejudice or so warped by fanatical zeal that it can see no good in anything the opposition does, or tolerate no one who believes in or acts with it, is not a help or benefit to its own party, nor faithful to its duty toward the people. It is this class of imprudent, bigoted and unscrupulous organs which beget the distrust of every reasonable and fair-minded reader, and disgust where they would convince or convert. They rush to attack the small rogues and to expose the petty offences of the opposition, while they are as blind as moles and entirely deaf to the sins and corruption of their own party.

Does not this sound a good deal like the reasonable teachings of the OREGONIAN and other independent Republican papers, at which the Bulletin was but lately wont daily to rail and rave? But for some trifling differences in the style of composition, it would be extremely difficult for any critic to detect wherein these extracts vary from the editorials touching the same subjects in any one of the independent journals.

We have not the slightest disposition to claim the Bulletin as one of our sheaves, howsoever gratifying it might be to be able to do so. It is enough that it is soundly converted, and that it now stands on the solid ground of political integrity upon which the OREGONIAN has stood for so long. Nor shall we offer a formal welcome to the Bulletin to the highest position it has assumed as a Republican paper. That task was a pleasant one but it should have been done some weeks since, when the Bulletin first declared the termination of its bondage to party spirit.

GIVE THE GIRLS A CHANCE.

At a meeting recently held at St. John's Wood, near London, to consider the subject of providing better facilities for the higher education of girls, Prof. Huxley presided. In his remarks at the opening of the meeting he said he was not convinced that the average woman is as strong intellectually as the average man. That his conclusion, based upon considerable observation and reflection, was that the "central point of female capacity" is not quite so high as that of "male capacity," but that it must not be inferred that the lowest order of masculine intellect is higher than the lowest of female. With such Pecksniffisms he defined his position, and then proceeded to talk sensibly for a few minutes, during which he said that practical success in life depends not so much on natural superiority of body and mind as upon diligent, persevering endeavor, and that in respect of these, women have proved themselves fully equals of men wherever they have enjoyed opportunities for a fair trial. He was therefore decidedly in favor of giving the girls a chance with the boys in the race of life. Amen! say we.

A San Francisco Chronicle special from Washington, says it is understood that Attorney General Williams will accept the mission to Russia, on account of the health of his wife. There may be some foundation for this report. Several days since a Press dispatch spoke of Mrs. Williams being very much out of health. The Russian mission has been vacant ever since the recall of Jewell, to take the position of Postmaster General.

There appears to be but one opinion as to the mode of selecting the jury in the Beecher-Tilton case. It is agreed on all hands that the packing of the jury was a most unfortunate step for Mr. Beecher.

COME UP HIGHER.

If the Portland Bulletin could only make up its mind now to take as high ground in favor of the people in their struggle against the oppressions of monopolies as it has taken on the question of partisan journalism, it would still further entitle itself to congratulations. It has come up to the mark in its political ideas, but not until the hardest of the fight against party tyranny was over. The war now waging is between the people and the tyrannical monopolies. In that conflict there is ample room for the Bulletin on the side of the people. No one has yet reached a solution, that is wholly satisfactory, of all the difficulties in the way of a complete and equitable adjustment of the question involved in the struggle, but it is certain such a solution will be reached. Time and experience will show the way to such a settlement as shall at once protect the people against the oppressions of the monopolies, and the monopolies against all unreasonable demands of the people, provided the public journals do their duty by helping the people into a position to negotiate the terms of the treaty upon the ground of perfect equality.

GOT ENOUGH.

The Democratic party of Indiana in State Convention the other day resolved:

> That we are opposed to any grants of public lands or loans of the public credit, either in the shape of National, State or local aid to railroads or other corporations, and we demand that the remaining public lands shall be held for the benefit of actual settlers only, under the homestead laws.

That means that in the opinion of the Indiana Democracy Indiana has got railways enough, or could not get any more subsidies in case any more were to be given, and therefore they want the thing stopped. It makes all the difference in the world whether it is yourself or your neighbor that requires help.

It it pretty safe to assume that Oregon will receive no support for the Salt Lake railway bill from any Indiana Democrat elected to Congress on that platform. It is to be hoped the bill will pass before any of that kind take their seats.

Among the quotations of railway securities in the New York Handels-Zeitung, the German commercial journal, we observe that Oregon and California Railroad bonds are quoted at 15¼ cents in Frankfort and 15¼ in Berlin. There is no other security quoted so low in Frankfort, and only the Rockford, Rock Island and St. Louis bond's bonds so low in Berlin. These are quoted at the same rate at the Oregon and California.

The last resolution of the platform adopted by the Democratic State Convention of Indiana, reads:

> 17. That we bear in grateful remembrance the sacrifices made and the services rendered by the gallant soldiers of the late war in defense of the Union, and we demand as an act of justice that the bounties of our soldiers, and of their widows and orphan children, shall be equalized by proper legislation.

CHENEY, THE "ASTROLOGER" IN A FREE-LOVE MEETING.—Brother Cheney, "a lecturer of eminence," proved to be a genuine prophet of evil. He declared that the planets were hastening to form a figure that would prove most disastrous to the world. While speaking, Brother Cheney brought his jaws together like an old-fashioned pair of nut-crackers and his figure looked like a tripod on a spree. He proved to be a sort of fire-brand among the free-lovers, and his dogmatic manner and disagreeable remarks excited some indignant comment.—S. F. Chronicle, July 27.

CITY.

A [illegible] Weapon.—One of the most handsome [illegible] weapons it has been our privilege to see was brought to this port on the [illegible] by one of the passengers. It is what is known as Martini's [illegible], being a union of both the Henry and Martini rifle. The barrel [illegible] to the Henry rifle, while the [illegible] trigger and breech-loading apparatus are peculiarly Martini's. The barrel is made of the finest steel and superbly finished. Seven grooves wind spirally around the inside of the barrel and impart to the ball the [illegible] it is hurled through the tremendous twist. The appliance [illegible] loading apparatus, which we have [illegible] by pressing a [illegible] the direction [illegible] a spring, a lever [illegible] which opens [illegible] the breech. With the rapidity [illegible] almost the metallic cartridge is slipped in and a pressure in a contrary direction closes everything up tight and at the same time cocks the rifle, so that the hunter only has to touch the trigger and the weapon is discharged. It is impossible to [illegible] at the same time putting it in complete readiness to fire, so that not even a second is lost in preparation. To prevent accident [illegible] premature discharge [illegible] the weapon is carefully provided, which if slipped [illegible] effectually prevents the hammer [illegible] no difference how hard one may [illegible] the trigger. When you are ready [illegible] is merely to lift the [illegible] into its place and pull the trigger. By this ingenious contrivance the piece is carried [illegible] all the time, but can be handled with impunity and is as harmless as any [illegible] spring is adjusted. Thirty shots per minute can be fired with this weapon, or one discharge [illegible] two seconds. It will carry a ball with absolute certainty for a mile and shoots with wonderful precision. The weapon is very light and finished in the most compact and workmanlike manner. This rifle is very extensively used both in England and France as a fowling piece.

A Magnificent Residence.—By all odds the largest and most elegant mansion in the city of Portland is the new residence of Hon Henry Failing, Mayor, which is rapidly approaching completion. The building occupies the block between Taylor and Salmon and Fifth and Sixth streets, fronting on Sixth. It is 48x[illegible] feet in ground dimensions, three stories high, the first being 14 feet, the second 12, the third 11½. Mansard roof covered with [illegible] tin. There are fifteen rooms, all hard finished, with plaster of Paris cornices. On the first floor are the parlors, sitting room, library and dining rooms, with kitchen, pantry, store room and also a butler's pantry with seventeen different [illegible] sets in two cases of drawers and marble sink attached. On the second floor north side is the beautiful room to be occupied by Mr Failing himself—[illegible] selection. The bed rooms are all large, airy and convenient to bath rooms, arranged for hot and cold and shower baths. The third story is well planned for children's play room and for bed rooms, all beautifully finished. The windows are all furnished with inside blinds. Telegraphic communication is provided for all the rooms to an annunciator in the back hall. There are twelve fire places with grates for wood or coal. The mantels are beautiful, eight of them marble and four of walnut, elaborately carved, as also are the stairways. The hardware for second and third story is bronzed. The lock for the front door cost $40, and the glass in the building $3,000. There are verandas on all sides for the first and second stories. The architect of this stately mansion is Mr H W Cleveland of San Francisco, the present superintendent Mr L St John. The building will be furnished and ready for occupancy by the first of October.

From the Old to the New.—Pursuant to announcement the members of the Washington Guard assembled at their old armory on Stark street last evening. The object of the meeting was the formal leaving of the armory for the new quarters on Washington street. Some time ago the owner of the building so long occupied by the company as an armory gave notice that he contemplated some changes and that it would be necessary for them to vacate. Last evening was the time designated for the formal and final evacuation of the building which the members of that sterling old military organization have for years regarded as their home, and at the hour appointed a large number of the members appeared in uniform. About 8 o'clock the company emerged from the old building for the last time, preceded by martial music, and the colors which have so often been borne at the head fluttering gaily at the van. After marching for some time through the principal streets the company headed for the new armory above [illegible] Cater's saloon, on Washington street, when they entered and took possession. This hall will serve the Washington Guard as an armory at least for the present or until other arrangements can be effected.

Hermine.—This vessel arrived here on Wednesday night in tow of the tug B[illegible] from Astoria. The Hermine sailed from this port last year with a full cargo of wheat. She crossed the bar bound out on the 28th of July 1873. After a fair voyage she arrived in England in 1[illegible] days from the mouth of the Columbia. On the return voyage the Hermine sailed for Portland on the 2[illegible] of January. Moderately fair weather was experienced until Cape Horn was reached, when a succession of heavy gales was encountered. When passing through the equatorial [illegible] in the Pacific considerable fine weather was experienced which protracted the voyage. [illegible] hundred and seventy nine days [illegible] when the Hermine reached the mouth of the Columbia, and after a few days delay was towed over the bar. She brings a full assorted cargo; the discharging will be commenced on Monday. During the long and tedious passage no accident happened, and no sickness occurred among the crew.

False.—The Astorian of Thursday, July 30th says: "Just as we went to press yesterday we heard that the British bark Hermine from Liverpool, which entered at Astoria on Monday, July 27th, 1874, is hard aground at Walker's Island, just below Rainier." Now either that paper willfully misrepresented the facts or its information was incorrect. We suspect that the editor's own envy of Portland and his evil thoughts whispered it to him, and that that was the way in which he heard it. The truth is that on the afternoon of the day before the one on which the paper containing the above falsehood was issued the bark Hermine was moored at the dock in this city. The "newsmonger" who is ostensibly editor of the Astorian may expect to gull his readers by such misrepresentations, but people who understand the matter will not only write him down idiotic but know him to be [illegible].

Blood [illegible].—Tomorrow evening the announcement is made that a tragedy is to be produced at [illegible] Theater. We understand that a number of stage struck individuals propose to murder, in the most approved style, the late Gen E R S Canby and Rev Dr Thomas, to a vast array of empty seats. Also, whether or not ex Peace Commissioner Meacham is to be included in the tragedy deponent saith not. It strikes us with peculiar force that the [illegible] honors will be [illegible] bring good the [illegible] in a decent manner with the [illegible]. Even while the atmosphere is burdened with a weight of human gore and the breath of public [illegible] the green [illegible] bring out the [illegible].

Steamship Ajax.—This steamer sailed last evening at 10 o'clock for San Francisco. She carried hence the following passengers: Capt Adair and wife, Dr [illegible] Smith, [illegible] M Kess, J Kennington, [illegible] brother, J W [illegible], wife and infant, J H [illegible], L Baldwin, [illegible] McHenry, S D [illegible], Jackson, W S [illegible], Erminger, P Whitcomb, [illegible] bett, David [illegible], Alley, wife [illegible], 8 Chinese, D [illegible], Danny, D P [illegible], F & Co's messenger and 10 in steerage.

Acknowledgment.—[illegible] us, in his behalf, to return his sincere thanks to Mr Chas Woodward for the use of his magic lantern, and also to Mr Charles K Stevens, the optician, who kindly volunteered his services [illegible] the occasion of [illegible] Hall [illegible].

The Injured.—Last Wednesday evening, at the close of the concert at the [illegible], Mr [illegible], a member of the City Band, met with a severe accident. As he was passing down street to attend the moonlight excursion given to Oregon City, he stepped through a hole in the sidewalk. The sudden lurch tripped him and he was violently prostrated, almost breaking one of his legs. A splendid $80 instrument was mashed and ruined. Our Street Superintendent should see to it that property owners keep their sidewalks, abutting on their premises, in a safe condition. Unless more attention is paid to the condition of [illegible] the city will have to pay for some one's broken limb.

New Steamer.—The powerful tug J C Lee is now lying at the Gas Company's wharf, where she will remain for a few days. This vessel has been used continuously for more than [illegible] months at the mouth of the Columbia. During all that time not a single repair has been made. She has become badly used up and [illegible] to avail of the present opportunity and have a new shaft put in and also some other slight repairs made. Tomorrow or the following day the Lee will proceed down the river ready to report for active service again.

Destroyed by Fire.—The evening papers [illegible]: On Monday night last a house occupied by Mr Sullivan and family in the neighborhood of Milwaukie was totally destroyed by fire, together with [illegible] in the immediate vicinity. Mr Sullivan was absent from home at the time and his family were only able to save but a trifling [illegible] of their effects. The fire was undoubtedly the work of an incendiary, and [illegible] of the parties residing in the vicinity are suspected of having committed the crime. [illegible] $1,000, upon which there was no insurance.

The Old Senator.—Since this ill fated craft took fire opposite Kalama some time ago and burned down to the water's edge, efforts have been made at intervals to get out the boiler, machinery and engines. These efforts have been attended with success, and in a short time everything of value will be extricated from the charred wreck. The engines are badly damaged, as they were exposed for some time to a very intense heat, but are not ruined and will be ready for service after being thoroughly overhauled.

Passengers.—The bark Hermine, which arrived here on Wednesday night, brought from England two passengers, W S Hamer, of Shropshire, and J H Hiscock, of Birkenhead. Both these gentlemen seem well pleased with the city and country so far as their limited opportunities to see have allowed, and they purpose remaining here. Mr Hiscock is a brother of the Captain of the Hermine.

Decided.—On Wednesday the case of Perry G Baker vs City of Portland for the sum of $3[illegible] due on account of labor expended upon the Stark street sewer was tried before Justice O S Fields. A judgment was rendered in behalf of the plaintiff for the amount claimed and also costs and disbursements.

Deferred.—In consequence of the Welcome service in the Baptist Church on Friday evening, the Ladies' Temperance meeting will be held on Saturday evening at the Taylor street M E Church at 7[illegible]. The usual services may be expected. All are invited.

Lecture.—Mrs Addie L Ballou will lecture in this city at Multnomah Hall, corner of Third and Alder streets, on Sunday, August 2[illegible], at 11 A M and 7.30 P M. The public generally are invited. Admission free.

THE STAGE.

Jim Vinson and W C Crosbie have become great favorites at Salt Lake City—both making lots of coin.

Speaking of Montgomery Queen's Menagerie and Circus, Mr Pell, agent for which was in Portland a few days ago, a San Francisco exchange says: "Montgomery Queen's Menagerie and Circus ranks everywhere at the [illegible] with those of Barnum's, Forepaugh and Old John Robinson's, and is by far the largest establishment in the show line that ever crossed the Continent. It comprises a most varied and talented company of artists and a mammoth collection of wild animals, including among other features the largest elephant that ever visited this coast."

Madame Anna Bishop, accompanied by her troupe, consisting of Mrs Mariner, Mr W C Campbell, Alfred Wilkie and H J [illegible], will arrive in Portland on next Monday. On Tuesday evening the first concert of the series will be given at Masonic Hall. The second and third concerts will be given on Thursday and Saturday evenings of next week. Of the merits and talents of this combination of musicians it is wholly needless to speak at present. The name alone of Madame Bishop, to say nothing of Mrs Mariner, who is regarded as one of the finest sopranos on the coast, Mr Campbell the superb basso and Mr Wilkie the finished tenor, is sufficient guarantee of the excellence of the concerts. Crowded houses can be confidently anticipated during the brief sojourn of the company in the city. Reserved seats can be procured by calling at Gray's music store.

THE MURDERED SCHOOLMASTER

PARTICULARS OF THE SHOOTING OF JOHN DELMATER IN JOSEPHINE COUNTY

From the Crescent City (Cal) Courier

On Tuesday the school house at Briggs Ranch, five miles from Waldo, was the scene of a bloody tragedy which resulted in the loss of the life of the school teacher, one John Delmater. At 10 o'clock that morning, while school was in session, Mrs G F Briggs, accompanied by her son David, the former armed with a huge cudgel and the latter with a Henry rifle, visited the school house. Mrs Briggs accused the teacher of seducing her daughter Caroline, a young girl aged about seventeen. Mrs Briggs told Delmater that she was going to kill him and commenced beating him with the cudgel. She then told her son David to shoot him. The boy, a lad about 18, fired three shots, but they all missed their mark. In the scuffle which then ensued Delmater managed to get possession of the gun, but receiving a severe blow from the cudgel in the hands of Mrs Briggs he was obliged to drop it. He then started to run, when the boy again fired, the shot taking effect and inflicting a mortal wound, from the effects of which Delmater died 14 hours afterward. The school children, who had scattered when the melee commenced, gave the alarm. Mrs Briggs and her son were arrested and a preliminary examination was had before Justice McIlwain of Waldo, who refused to admit them to bail, but committed them to the jail at Kerbyville to await further examination. Delmater was a young man of about 30 years of age and was universally esteemed by the people of the section where he resided. Previous to his death he made his will [illegible] Mr McIlwain denied the alleged criminal intercourse with the young lady. The feeling against Mrs Briggs and her son is very bitter, and there are threats of lynch law.

THE CHAMPOEG MURDERER

Below we give the communication of His Excellency L F Grover, Governor, to the Sheriff of Marion county in relation to the case of Thomas Gerrand, now in jail awaiting the execution of his sentence for the murder of Thomas J Hubbard at Champoeg in that county on the 12th day of last April:

Executive Office, Salem, July 28 1874.

To [illegible] Sheriff of Marion County:—Sir: Herewith I transmit you my findings and conclusions on an application to commute the sentence of Thomas Gerrand, a prisoner in your charge, convicted of murder in the first degree, by which you will observe that I [illegible] sufficient grounds to warrant me in interfering with the proceedings of the Court. Very truly yours,

L F GROVER, Governor.

State of Oregon, Executive Office, Salem, July [illegible] 1874.

In the matter of the application to commute the sentence of Thomas Gerrand:—At the June term of the Circuit Court of Marion county, Thomas Gerrand was tried upon an indictment for murder in the first degree. The jury in the case rendered a verdict of guilty as charged in the indictment. A motion in arrest of judgment and for a new trial was interposed, but afterwards withdrawn by defendant's counsel, whereupon sentence was passed upon the accused at the bar, that he be executed on the 14th day of August, 1874.

Application is now made for Executive clemency, and that the sentence of the Court be commuted to that of imprisonment for life.

The facts in the case, as gathered from the [illegible] statement of the Judge of the Court before whom the case was tried and of the prosecuting officer who conducted the trial on the part of the State, are as follows: Several weeks before the difficulty which culminated in the death of Thomas J Hubbard at the hand of Thomas Gerrand, on the 12th day of April 1874, the latter had been employed to work for the former, and a dispute arose between them as to the payment of a small sum of money which Gerrand demanded and Hubbard refused to pay, the latter claiming that the amount of work which Gerrand had contracted to do for a stipulated price had not been done.

A few days after leaving the service of Hubbard, Gerrand obtained a Colt's navy revolver and told one witness that he had purchased it for the purpose of getting even with Hubbard. At another time he told two other witnesses that Hubbard owed him money, and if he did not pay him he (Gerrand) would put a bullet through him (Hubbard). On the morning of the homicide Gerrand asked another witness to load his pistol and to put in big charges, saying that he might kill a man that day. The pistol was loaded and Gerrand took it, went to Champoeg and inquired for Hubbard. He was informed that Hubbard was at a certain place—half a mile distant. He went to the place mentioned, found Hubbard; little or nothing was said, but Hubbard shortly left the place, going in the direction of Champoeg. Gerrand followed close after him. Hubbard reaching Champoeg entered the store of C O [illegible]. Immediately afterwards Gerrand came to the entrance of the store and remained standing in the door. Hubbard said to M[illegible], "That is the man," referring to Gerrand, "who wanted to shoot me awhile ago in the woods [illegible]." Gerrand replied in substance that if he (Hubbard) did not pay him he would shoot him yet. To which Hubbard rejoined, "I will see you damned first." Gerrand raised his pistol and fired, the ball taking effect in the lower front portion of the neck, from the wound of which Hubbard died a few days afterwards.

It does not appear that Hubbard was armed at the time of the fatal meeting, nor that he did anything further than stated to provoke the deadly assault.

With these leading facts substantially, though perhaps not exactly stated, there appear to be no material circumstances or points of evidence in conflict.

After presenting the chief incidents of the case as developed on the trial, Judge Bonham remarks: "I studiously endeavored to secure to Thomas Gerrand a fair and impartial trial according to law. I am satisfied that on this score no just ground of complaint can be entertained.

It was in my judgment conclusively proven upon the trial of said Gerrand that he did deliberately and with malice aforethought shoot and kill Thomas J Hubbard as charged in the indictment."

The Prosecuting Attorney remarks: "The accused Gerrand was tried by a jury of good and lawful men, under the supervision of an honorable, competent and conscientious judge, and was defended by able counsel.

I presume the proceedings were fair and regular; [illegible] no exceptions to the same have been finally insisted upon."

The petitions set up no newly discovered evidence, nor do they present any considerations in palliation of the crime committed which were not presented to the jury and urged before the Court.

Under this state of facts I cannot arrive at any other conclusion than that stated by the judge who presided at the trial.

Commutation of the sentence is sought upon three principal grounds:

1. The youth of the person under sentence.
2. He is of Indian blood in part.
3. [illegible] of the petitions present arguments against capital punishment in any case.

The age of criminal responsibility is laid down by legal authorities at fourteen years, though upon proof of a sufficient knowledge of and discrimination between right and wrong, persons of much younger years have been held amenable to the penalties of murder. After the age of fourteen years it has been considered that [illegible] consideration of crime.

In this case it appears that Gerrand is between seventeen and eighteen years of age. There is no evidence that he has not, as usual, the intelligence and strength of mind accompanying those years.

That he is of Indian blood in part should not be allowed, and I think has not been allowed, to weigh against him. The fact appears rather to have created a sympathy in his favor, as it is mentioned in all of the petitions. Neither should this fact be a bar to the penalty of violated law. For among all races of men, civilized and savage, and with few exceptions in all ages, there has been but one penalty for the willful and felonious taking of the life of a fellowman—that penalty [illegible] a life for a life. This has not only been the penalty affixed by human laws, but by the mandate of Divine Power.

All classes of our [illegible] are under [illegible] this law.

The [illegible] of the Statutes is that every person convicted of murder in the first degree shall be punished with death.

While entertaining respect for the views and feelings of those who are opposed to capital punishment, I am under my sworn duty to execute the laws as I find them, and do not permit me to entertain arguments and considerations, however cogent, against the laws themselves. These are questions for the consideration of the Legislature.

Acting under the weight of solemn official duty, and in view of the whole case, I am compelled to the conclusion that the judgment of the Court in this case be not arrested, and that the sentence of the Court [illegible] justly be commuted.

I [illegible] those in charge of the prisoner that he have every privilege and assistance in his preparation to meet the final Judge of all men.

BY [illegible]

I hold him great who for love's sake
Can give with generous, earnest will;
Yet he who takes for love's sweet sake
I think I do hold more generous still.

I bow before the noble mind
That freely some great wrong forgives;
Yet nobler is the one forgiven
Who bears that burden well and lives.

It may be hard to gain, and still
To keep a lowly steadfast heart;
Yet he who loses has to fill
A harder and truer part.

Glorious it is to wear the crown
Of a deserved and pure success;
He who knows how to fail has won
A crown whose lustre is no less.

Great may he be who can command
And rule with just and tender sway;
Yet is diviner wisdom taught
Better by him who can obey.

Blessed are those who die for God
And earn the martyr's crown of light;
Yet he who lives for God may be
A greater conqueror in his sight.

THE HERO OF NIAGARA

THOMAS CONROY, PROF. TYNDALL'S GUIDE—HIS RESCUE OF WM. McCULLOUGH—FULL PARTICULARS OF THE EXTRAORDINARY FEAT.

[From the Buffalo Commercial Advertiser.]

Many of our readers will recollect the prominence given a certain guide of Niagara Falls by Prof. Tyndall after his return home, in describing his explorations behind the falling waters. That this guide's heroic deed was not overrated we have ample evidence from his courage exhibited yesterday in rescuing Wm. McCullough from a watery grave.

About 11:30 A. M., the citizens of the town of Niagara were shocked by the report that a painter working on the bridge leading to the second Sister Island had fallen into the rapids below and was carried over the falls. Our reporter was soon on the spot and found the facts somewhat exaggerated. It seems that the painter, who is some sixty years of age, was engaged in painting the bridges spanning the chasms between the three islands, known as the Sister Islands. In descending a short ladder to a narrow scaffold beside the bridge he accidentally stepped to one side of the planks and fell to the river below, only a distance of a few feet. In an instant he was carried down the stream towards the falls. Geo. Curtis, a photographer, who was arranging his camera to take a view of the bridge with the painter in his perilous position, heard a cry and immediately crossed to Goat Island and ran toward Terrapin Tower, thinking he might possibly approach near enough the shore to receive what he supposed would be a corpse after going through the turbulent rapids.

The unfortunate man rolled over and over until he reached a deep place a few rods below the bridge, when he disappeared with the exception of his boots. The heavy current swept him on toward the precipice with equal pace with the photographer until about forty rods below the bridge, when his head appeared above the water. Not being entirely insensible he espied a rock about six inches out of the water and spreading out his arms was driven with extreme force on it. In a nearly exhausted condition he raised himself out of the water and sat calmly on the rock. Being not far from shore, Mr. Curtis asked if he was hurt and received the reply that he was uninjured. Messengers were immediately dispatched to the paper mill for ropes and in a few minutes nearly the whole village was running toward the scene.

The necessary ropes were soon on the ground, and a young man volunteered to go to the rescue. Fastening the rope around his waist he started for the rock, but he had gone but a few feet when it was evident that his fragile form could not withstand the fierce current, and he came ashore.

About this time Thomas Conroy, a guide at the Cave of the Winds, appeared on the scene and immediately volunteered to bring Mr. McCullough ashore. Taking the rope in his hand, Conroy started toward the isolated painter, but the force of the current against the rope and himself was even too strong for his strong frame, and he likewise retreated. By this time Mr. McCullough could be seen trembling with the cord still grasping the putty knife, to which he had tenaciously held during his rapid descent, and many were afraid he would become chilled through and not be able to help himself ashore after the rescue. Mr. Conroy now waded the river a few rods and again started out alone and succeeded in reaching the unfortunate man. Tying the rope around McCullough's breast and winding the end twice about his own hand the two started ashore. They had only gone a few steps when the stiff current swept their feet from under them, and many strong hands commenced pulling on the rope.

The fierce current, together with the rapid pulling immediately caused the heads of both to disappear under water and in this condition they were both landed safely amid the cheers of the hundreds who lined the banks. Both persons were nearly suffocated, but soon recovered. Cheer after cheer went up for Conroy, "the hero of Niagara."

A gentleman and lady who were stopping at one of the hotels immediately handed him $15 and in a very short time the amount was raised to something over $100.

Mr. McCullough is aged about sixty years and a man very highly respected by all who know him. Although the shock to his nervous system is considerable, his personal injuries are very slight. The rock that was his refuge from death for one hour is only two feet square, and will probably be henceforth called "McCullough's Rock." On reaching it, Conroy requested the gift of the putty knife as a souvenir of the occasion, but, very much to his regret, lost it before getting ashore.

A TERRIBLE THIRTY MINUTES' HISTORY.—The East Wayne county (Tenn.) Citizen says: "Mr. Kyle was at a neighbor's house-raising, and his wife with her youngest child, went to a spring near by to do her washing. After being engaged some time she heard a scream from her little girl, whom she had left at the house, and hastening to the scene, it was her horror to behold a large rattlesnake lying there with its poisonous fangs fastened in the child's arm. She succeeded in killing the rattlesnake, and then thinking of the child which she had left at the spring hastened there, only to find that this one had climbed up to the tub of water and fallen in and was drowned. This nearly crazed her and she ran with all her might to where the house-raising was and screaming with excitement called to her husband who was upon the building at the time, and he, through excitement in trying to get down, pulled a piece of timber upon himself and fell, killing him instantly. The friends then went back to where the child and the snake were only to find each lying dead on the floor. This all happened within thirty minutes."

A SENSIBLE SUGGESTION.—In the debate on Mr. Butt's Home Rule motion, Mr. Disraeli chaffed the Irish good naturedly about their pride in being a conquered country. He denied that Ireland had been conquered more than most other countries had. The Irish had been conquered by the Normans, but so had England. They had been conquered by Cromwell, but Cromwell had conquered the English first. And then he added with a sarcasm of wider range: "Amid the various systems of education of all kinds now afloat and when they are matured and the consequences realized, I have no doubt that the great body of the nation will be acquainted with anything except the information of the current hour, and if the Irish gentlemen would only hold their tongues in the course of a generation I do not believe that anybody would remember that they had been conquered, and that they would turn out to be the representatives of a contented and prosperous people." —London Cor. N. Y. Times.

ADVICE TO FARMERS' BOYS.—"I am a farmer's boy, twenty one years of age. Don't think I can enter any of the professions—indeed do not think I am possessed of the right elements for success in them. I believe we were placed in this world for some purpose. Now, what can I do to accomplish that purpose?"

Why, dear fellow, you can't do better than to be a good farmer. Set an example of industry, intelligence, kindness and public spirit in your own neighborhood and you will be one of the multitude of patient workers who are helping the world out of the mud. Few men can do more than just this; let them make ever so much fuss.—Christian Union.

It is said that Mr. Lewis, the husband of "George Eliot," is so considerate of her literary feelings, and she is so sensitive to adverse criticism, that he goes carefully through all the reviews and newspapers and keeps out of her sight any notice of her books and poems that are really severe.

Wheat in Liverpool—By mail advices from San Francisco [illegible] 11s 7d for average California and 11s 11 [illegible] for club.

Our local finance market has manifested [illegible] during the past week. It is believed that the supply of money for all legitimate purposes of trade is abundant, and that the movement of the [illegible] will depend upon the price which the markets of demand will justify. [illegible] we are on the eve of [illegible] that when everything [illegible] to invest money in grain and ships [illegible] will not be at all lacking. But should prices in Europe, where our grain finds its principal market, be so low that it will not pay to ship at the rates which [illegible] charters, we may find that though money is plenty wheat may be very low. Prices depend on something besides the money supply.

The general trade in our city during the week which we have now especially under review has been far from active, but the dullness is readily accounted for at this season when everybody in the interior is busily engaged in harvesting, which is now nearly at its height. Merchants, however, are by no means discouraged as they expect a very reasonable degree of activity to prevail when once the fall trade has fairly set in and are [illegible] the dull season of the year in a cheerful manner.

Reports from the interior of our own State and Washington Territory as harvest progresses gives proof of a full yield in most localities. The only exception is in some sections east of the Cascade mountains, where the wheat will fall much short of last year's crop. In this valley especially heavy yields are almost universal. The weather has been excellent and the crops will be saved in splendid condition.

Some of the more sagacious dealers in coin and many of those who are studying the effects of the new currency law are said to be free in the expression of the opinion that the new loan movement of Secretary Bristow and the currency act will together bring down the premium on gold for the remainder of the season upon the ground that the relation of the loan to the foreign exchange is as certain as the relation of exchange to the trade demand for gold.

The New York Tribune of July 15th publishes the results of an extended survey of the business fields as regards the experience of the dry goods trade, which suggests a very promising rift in the clouds about which so much has been said during the past six or nine months. The main feature, however, of that paper's observation is that the greatest success has followed in the train of judicious and liberal investments in advertising. Almost without exception the merchants who most persistently invite the public into their stores are the ones for whom panics have no terror and to whom depression is an idle word—a fact which is just as true of other cities as of New York.

Commercial News Items.

[BY MAIL.]

The total exports of produce from New York for the week ending Wednesday, July 15th, amounted to $7,387,186, an increase over the previous week of $195,542. The exports for the corresponding week of last year were $4,964,510. The total exports of produce since the first of January, this year are $152,387,863, against $145,174,311 last year.

According to the report of the Agricultural Department for the month of June the increase in land under wheat has, since the season of 1870–71, been equal to one hundred and seven per cent for the whole country. It would appear, therefore, that we are increasing our wheat production not only out of all proportion to our increase in population but also beyond that of consuming countries and are consequently running somewhat ahead of the market.

The last number of the Shoe and Leather Reporter gives some interesting statistics concerning the exports of hides and leather from the United States during the past six months, from which it appears that the total value of the hides exported from the ports of Philadelphia, New York and Boston amounted to $1,213,764, which at the low average of five dollars per hide, would give 242,755 hides exported from the United States during the past six months. The majority of these were domestic hides, very few dry hides being sent abroad. The total value of the shipments of leather for the same period amounted to $2,168,674. This is a gratifying showing to those interested in the success of American leather abroad.

The indications are that the wool clip which is now pretty fully gathered, will not present any falling off from last year's yield and the farmers are reported as being generally satisfied alike with the product and price. A considerable proportion of the new clip is passing direct into the hands of manufacturers; the bulk of it, however, will probably take the usual course of the commission houses, which owing to the easy condition of the money market are now enabled to make liberal cash remittances on consignments.

The Philadelphia Ledger of July 15th learns by a letter from one of the largest iron workers in the country that more orders had been received for iron within the last ten days than in all the six weeks previously. Similar revivals are heard of in various directions and from these manifestations marked encouragement is felt of an early revival and an active fall business, especially in iron and if in iron necessarily in coal, and if in both coal and iron then as a consequence in transportation for which the railway companies are anxiously waiting. It is the hour for courage.

Home Produce Market.

WHEAT—The new crop will average ten days later in reaching market this year than usual, though perhaps not that time behind that of last year, as but a few small lots were received here until the middle of August. Opening prices last year were $1 [illegible] per cental; now they are 10 cents per cental lower. As we predicted some time ago we doubt if the cereal reaches the extreme figures which it went up to last fall. Reports from the great grain growing countries of the world give flattering accounts of the prospects of the wheat crop, with but very few exceptions. Our market at present is undisturbed, quotations being nominal at $1 40 per cental. There is said to be a very considerable amount of the new crop contracted for at this figure. We have not been able to obtain accurate information on this point.

FLOUR—The supply at hand is not large, but is perhaps sufficient to meet the demand until the product of the new crop reaches market. Prices have been steady for some time at $5 [illegible] ₱ bbl for best brands of Extra, $4 for good outside and country brands, $4@4 50 for superfine to inferior brands.

OATS—We note the market in this cereal as dull and but few buyers can now be found who are anxious to handle large lots at current rates, which are scarcely quotable above 40c ₱ bushel, though perhaps very choice might command [illegible] cents more.

BARLEY—There has been absolutely no transaction worthy of note in this grain in our market for a week or more, and to give quotations at other figures than last sales were made, which were $1 [illegible] ₱ cental, choice.

FEED—The trade is dull and though prices are not essentially lower sales are slow at the current rates, which are $12 ₱ ton for bran, shorts $17@18, chopped middlings, etc., $20.

HAY—There is a great abundance of the new crop of timothy offering at $17@18 ₱ ton baled, or $8 50@9 for loose from wagons. The demand, except for local consumption, is very dull.

POTATOES—Are coming in freely, and the market is fully supplied with best varieties at from [illegible] ₱ bushel, sacked. We look for lower prices soon, as the crop is very large and the supply can only be got off when prices decline sufficiently to justify shipments to California.

ONIONS—The new crop is beginning to reach our market in small lots, but quotations founded on their sale would hardly be fair as they are not salable for shipping, being yet scarcely matured. The market is quotable at 3@4 cents ₱ lb.

DRIED FRUIT—The demand is well supplied at current rates, and shipments not resulting in encouragement, prices are rather weaker. We quote apples in sacks at 6 cents ₱ lb; in kegs, 7c. Plums with pits are quotable at 6c; pitless in better request at [illegible].

BACON—The trade is dull for common Oregon cut, which we are loth to acknowledge is not put up in the most attractive style. Quotations for such are much below that of some fancy brand of home production and much imported. Common heavy Sides are quotable at 9@10 cents; Shoulders 7[illegible]; Hams [illegible]. Extra qualities of the latter are [illegible] higher.

LARD—The stock of good fresh in keg is small and such brings about as much as in tins. We quote choice at 13@14 cents ₱ lb.

BUTTER—The receipts of the past few days have been light and prices are unchanged or fully as firm as at our last report. A good quality of fresh roll will sell readily at 20@22 ₱ lb. Fancy print [illegible] on contract; common ranges from [illegible], while some that offers would hardly command 12½c.

CHEESE—The market is well supplied with Eastern, California and Oregon made, and choice of either is jobbing at 16@18 cents ₱ lb. One of the weekly papers of this city is much mistaken about the brands of this article in the market. If he will inquire of dealers he will learn his error.

EGGS—Prices are slightly lower under increased receipts; jobbers now paying 25 cents ₱ dozen.

FRESH MEATS—We quote choice young steers on foot at 5@6 cents ₱ lb; common lots, 4@5 cents. Most of the arrivals now are in excellent condition.

Mutton sheep [illegible] quotable at $[illegible]. Dressed hogs nominal at 6 [illegible] cents. Demand [illegible] active.

HIDES—Choice dry quotable at 16@18 cents ₱ lb; green, [illegible] cents; culls, half [illegible] cents. The shipment and receipts are large.

WOOL—The spring clip is well nigh all marketed. Rates are but little altered from our last reports. Offers remain at 20@28c; for inferior lots [illegible]. The total receipts have been near 2,800,000 pounds, [illegible] a million more than last year. Producers as a rule have done well.

Shipping Intelligence.
